For Sale: $15.00

The artist has donated his services for the sale of these custom double-matted prints for the sole benefit of:

Friends of the Library at Point of Rocks

The subject for this painting is of the life-size bronze public art statue called "Classics" located near the front door of the C. Burr Artz Public Library in downtown Frederick, MD.

The sculpturer, George Lundeen of Loveland, Colorado, depicts a special needs child, Danny, who has Down syndrome. He is reading to two smaller children. The art was created to express concern for the well-being & education of all our youth.

The original bronze was commissioned as a gift for the library by the Joseph D. Baker Fund.

All gross proceeds are will be donated to the FOLPOR, a 501(c)3 tax-exempt charitable organization.

Print sales are being provided by the Point of Rocks Ruritan Club,
as a community service project of their Social Development Committee.
Number of copies of this print will be limited to 20, and will go fast.
